

Bin Crow Bio

Bin Crow is a watercolorist and an acrylic painter. She is showing her paintings regularly at North Coastal Art Gallery and San Diego Watercolor Society. A language teacher by profession, Bin Crow began to explore the language of art by reading books, going to local art classes and attending workshops by renowned artists. She is fascinated by the colors, shapes, lights and shadows of a painting and she understands that those elements, when combined in certain ways, can evoke strong feelings. Bin Crow signs her painting BCC, the initials of her full name. She believes her paintings are communicating with each individual viewer in a private way.

Even though Bin hasn't been painting for long, she has won quite a few awards including a Best of Show award from North Coastal Art Gallery and a Second Place Award in Vista Visions 2019 Juried art Exhibition.

Besides painting, Bin enjoys dancing, pickleballing and traveling. During Covid quarantine and isolation, Bin painted birds on Palm fronds to decorate her small garden and taught herself Spanish. Now a resident in Oceanside California, Bin plans to paint more local landmarks and sceneries.
